AUSTRALIAN SOCIALIST LEAGUE

The usual weekly debate was held at 583 George Street, Sydney, on Sunday evening last. The subject was, "What shall we do with our unemployed." It was opened by Corinne A. M. P. de Courades-Krump, M. McLauren.-Gottschalk was also before the question. The opposition was rather lively at times, some of the speakers sustaining the hard raps that were given by the self-seeking legislators. The reason why wages are not increased and why their maintenance is an industrial reserve as long as the present system of production for profit lasts, was fully gone into. Missers, McLauren and Pitter. The end of land monoply were also touched up and the exhorbitant rents levied by the Sydney Landlords was fully gone into.

The state of the working people is England, Ireland, Scotland, Germany, Belgium, France, and Australia was pictured to the listeners in all its horror and insurmountable degradations. Socialism was defined as being the only true remedy for all the moral, social, political, and industrial evils that in the meantime are growing under.

On the motion of C. A. H. A. de Torquay the debate was adjourned until the following Sunday (Oct. 16th) when he will continue the debate. Several other addresses which he is unable to attend to this Sunday will take part in the debates the coming Sunday. On Sunday the 23rd the League will hold an open air meeting at the Relief Works, George's River, where W. H. McLauren and others will deliver addresses on the "Coming Social Revolution." The meeting will be held at 2 p.m. in the afternoon.

Through some blundering stupidity of the part of the Postal officials we did not receive our supply of +20 ails last week, but got them on Monday morning, on our Sunday meetings. We have the following for a large amount of business and a bundle of Manifestos.

SOCIALIST.

HAWKESBURY STRIKE.

(To the Editor)

On Monday morning all the men who work at the Hawkesbury bridge were told to be off work for eight hours instead of ten. The men were not to return until their demands were met. They are in hopes to get by Oct. 11th.
