The editorial ATTLE MUST EXPLAIN DEATH OF UK SAILORS

The Australian government should fully explain the circumstances of the death of two British sailors in China's war with Japan.

The British naval authority in China has been critical of the Australian government for its handling of the incident. The British sailors were reportedly executed by the Japanese authorities after being captured in a naval action.

The British government has been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident. The British ambassador to China has been unable to obtain any official information from the Japanese authorities.

A British official has said that the British government is doing everything possible to obtain information about the incident.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has been accused of not doing enough to protect its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The United States has been critical of the British government for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The United States has been critical of the British government for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The United States has been critical of the British government for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The United States has been critical of the British government for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The United States has been critical of the British government for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The United States has been critical of the British government for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The United States has been critical of the British government for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The United States has been critical of the British government for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The United States has been critical of the British government for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The United States has been critical of the British government for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The United States has been critical of the British government for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The United States has been critical of the British government for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The United States has been critical of the British government for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China.

The Australian government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The British government has been criticized for not providing adequate consular protection to its citizens in China, especially in the wake of a string of similar incidents.

The British government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.

The American government has also been criticized for not providing enough information about the incident.