

THE FABIAN SOCIETY OF QUEENSLAND

The Executive Committee of the Fabian Society of Queensland, invites you to join the Society.

The Society consists of socialists, and its principal aims are:

- (a) To work for the reorganisation of society on the basis of Socialism;
- (b) To work for the preservation and enlargement of personal freedom;
- (c) To advocate and promote popular understanding of Socialism.

Fabian Societies, particularly the British Fabian Society, have a long history in the Socialist movement. The Fabian Society of Queensland, although not affiliated with any other Society, is in friendly contact with Fabian Societies in other States and in Britain.

Our members are not committed to the support of any political policy, apart from general support for Socialism. They are not required to be member of any particular political party, but the Rules of the Society require that applicants for membership should not belong to any organisation having a programme contrary to that of the Australian Labour Party.

The Fabian Society of Queensland has, for many years provided a service to the labour movement. Its chief activities are in research and in the publication of socialist material.

The Society also provides speakers for labour and trade union meetings and undertakes research on matters of industrial and political importance.

The Fabian Society of Queensland enjoys a high reputation and is anxious to maintain it. It offers unlimited opportunities to members to help in carrying out its important educational work, and to assist in the running of the Society.

The Executive Committee believes that there are many people who appreciate the need for the work the Society is doing, and hopes to do even more intensively. This appeal is directed to them. If you are amongst their number and if you think that there is a need for a vigorous presentation of socialist ideas and interpretations of today's political and economic problems; if you think that there is a need for discussion of socialist principles; if you are looking for a forum for constructive socialist criticism, then The Fabian Society of Queensland is the medium for your activity.

The Society meets in the Trades Hall, Brisbane, on every fourth Tuesday, at 7.30 PM.
