BOOK REVIEW

COAST TO COAST

Coast To Coast is published monthly as a selection of the best short stories written in Australia and New Zealand. The selections usually include one long Australian story and the latest contribute by "The Australian Woman," a collection of the work of the various women's clubs in the country.

Among the authors in this issue, we have one by John M. Brown, "The Red Cross Girl," and another by Miss F. W. W., "The Little Girl and the Giant," which is likely to be the best of the stories. The editors have also managed to include a selection of the best short stories from the various women's clubs in the country.

Community Review On "The Monarch"

This week's issue of Community Review contains an article on "The Monarch," a new novel by one of our most popular writers. The review is written by Miss Smith, and it is likely to be the best of the stories. The editors have also managed to include a selection of the best short stories from the various women's clubs in the country.
