DIRECT ACTION
NO. 37 MARCH 8 1973 10 CENTS
A FORTNIGHTLY SOCIALIST NEWSPAPER

INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY

Is Biology Woman's Destiny?
by Evelyn Reed
DIRECT ACTION
No. 37 March 8, 1979

DIRECT ACTION
No. 37 March 8, 1979

Vic. YLA Takes Steps Towards Mass Action

BY ANDREW JAMESON

As a previous leader of the YLA, I would like to suggest that the YLA move towards a more aggressive form of action. The YLA has been criticized in the past for being too passive, and I believe that this criticism is justified. The YLA needs to take a more proactive approach in order to achieve its goals.

The YLA has traditionally focused on legal action, but I believe that this approach is no longer sufficient. The YLA needs to take direct action in order to make a real impact. This could include blocking entrances to buildings, occupying schools, and other forms of direct action. The YLA needs to be more bold and aggressive in order to achieve its goals.

Marxist Scholars To Tour Australia

BY EVELYN REED

The YLA needs to be more visible and active in order to attract public attention. The YLA needs to be more proactive in order to achieve its goals.

Marxist scholars are set to tour Australia, with the aim of educating the public about Marxist theory and ideology. The tour will be led by a team of leading Marxist scholars, including philosopher and author, and will visit a number of universities and public venues across the country.

The tour is part of a larger campaign to raise awareness of the principles of Marxism and to challenge the dominant capitalist ideology. The YLA is likely to be heavily involved in promoting the tour and encouraging participation.

Contact Socialist In Your Area

ADDRESS
PHONE
POSTCODE

Contact Socialist In Your Area

ADDRESS
PHONE
POSTCODE

PUBLIC MEETINGS
EVELYN REED

Is Biology Woman's Destiny?

Public meetings will be held in various cities across Australia to discuss the role of biology in determining women's destiny.

SYDNEY
BRISBANE
CANBERRA
ADELAIDE
MELBOURNE

Sub Drive Gains Pace But Still Behind Schedule

The sub drive is gaining momentum, but it is still behind schedule. The drive is needed to raise funds for the YLA, and we are making progress, but we need to do more.

Marxist Scholars To Tour Australia

The tour will be led by a team of leading Marxist scholars, including philosopher and author, and will visit a number of universities and public venues across the country.

The tour is part of a larger campaign to raise awareness of the principles of Marxism and to challenge the dominant capitalist ideology. The YLA is likely to be heavily involved in promoting the tour and encouraging participation.

Contact Socialist In Your Area

ADDRESS
PHONE
POSTCODE

Contact Socialist In Your Area

ADDRESS
PHONE
POSTCODE

PUBLIC MEETINGS
EVELYN REED

Is Biology Woman's Destiny?

Public meetings will be held in various cities across Australia to discuss the role of biology in determining women's destiny.

SYDNEY
BRISBANE
CANBERRA
ADELAIDE
MELBOURNE

Sub Drive Gains Pace But Still Behind Schedule

The sub drive is gaining momentum, but it is still behind schedule. The drive is needed to raise funds for the YLA, and we are making progress, but we need to do more.
The Peace Treaty, the Communist Party and the Antiwar Movement

Since the signing of the Paris Peace Accords in Vietnam on January 27th this year, the world has been waiting for the moment when the war would end. In Vietnam, where the Communist Party has been fighting for independence for over 20 years, the signing of the Peace Treaty has been seen as a major victory. The Communist Party, which has been a key player in the antiwar movement, was instrumental in negotiating the treaty. This article explores the role of the Communist Party in the antiwar movement and the implications of the Peace Treaty for Vietnam.

In the world, the Communist Party has been a major force in the antiwar movement. The party has been active in many countries, promoting the cause of peace and opposing war. The Communist Party has been involved in negotiations on a number of conflicts, including the Vietnam War. The signing of the Peace Treaty in Vietnam is seen as a major victory for the Communist Party.

The Peace Treaty was signed on January 27th, ending the Vietnam War. The treaty was a major victory for the Communist Party, which had been fighting for independence for over 20 years. The treaty has been met with mixed reactions, with some seeing it as a new chapter in the region's history and others expressing concerns about the future.

Victorian Teachers on the Move

The Victorian Teachers Strike of 1975 was a significant event in the history of the Australian education system. The strike was led by the Victorian Teachers Union, which sought to improve the working conditions of teachers and their pay. The strike was a major victory for the union, and it helped to establish the right of teachers to negotiate for better working conditions.

The strike began on March 27th, 1975, and lasted for six weeks. During this time, teachers across Victoria went on strike, demanding better working conditions and higher pay. The strike was supported by many students, who demonstrated in solidarity with their teachers.

The strike was a major victory for the union, and it helped to establish the right of teachers to negotiate for better working conditions. It also helped to raise the profile of the union and its demands, and it paved the way for future strikes in the education sector.

Primary Teachers Strike in Melbourne

The Primary Teachers Strike of 1983 was a significant event in the history of the Australian education system. The strike was led by the Primary Teachers Union, which sought to improve the working conditions of teachers and their pay. The strike was a major victory for the union, and it helped to establish the right of teachers to negotiate for better working conditions.

The strike began on March 27th, 1983, and lasted for six weeks. During this time, teachers across Victoria went on strike, demanding better working conditions and higher pay. The strike was supported by many students, who demonstrated in solidarity with their teachers.

The strike was a major victory for the union, and it helped to establish the right of teachers to negotiate for better working conditions. It also helped to raise the profile of the union and its demands, and it paved the way for future strikes in the education sector.
How Not to Combat Rising Prices

BY BILL GIBBS

The Communist Party of Australia (CPA) has recently discovered the "right" answer to the problem of rising prices. Their policy is to "stamp out nazism".

Anti-Nazi Demo

"It's not a war on terror, it's war on the CPA," says one of the Demo's organizers. "They want to stamp out Nazism, but they don't want to stamp out Communism." As the Demo moved through the streets, it was evident that the CPA was no match for the Demo's spirit. "They're not even trying to avoid Nazism," said one Demo participant. "They're just trying to avoid us." The Demo's slogan, "Stamp Out Nazism," was nowhere to be found on the CPA's own sign.

Stamp Out Nazism

In the wake of the Demo, the CPA has decided to act. They have issued a statement saying, "We will not tolerate nazism in our party. We will stamp it out at all costs."

Student Actions for April 11

BY MIKE JONES

Preparations for the national secondary student actions to be held on April 11 are well underway. The Federation National Secondary School Students, which is a CPA group, has been at the forefront of organizing these actions. The school students are determined to make their voices heard.

In Melbourne, the Federation National Secondary School Students has set up a series of meetings to discuss the actions. The meetings have been well attended and the students have been vocal in their demands.

The actions are scheduled to take place on April 11. Students from all around the country are expected to participate. The Federation National Secondary School Students is encouraging all students to join in.

MOA Strikes for Wage Justice

BY ANDREW PATTISON

The MOA (Motive Oil Australia) has launched a strike to demand fair wages for its workers. The workers have been working for months without a raise, and now they are determined to stand up for their rights.

The MOA has been working for months to reach a fair agreement with its employers. However, the employers have refused to budge, and now the workers are taking matters into their own hands.

The strike is expected to last for several days. The MOA is calling on all workers to support the strike and to stand with them in their fight for fair wages.

Abortion Laws in Europe

Over 150,000 women have signed a petition demanding the decriminalization of abortion. The petition was launched by the European Parliament, and it has been signed by thousands of women across Europe.

The petition calls for the decriminalization of abortion, and it is supported by many politicians and activists.

Women in Revolt

ABORTION LAWS IN EUROPE

Over 150,000 women have signed a petition demanding the decriminalization of abortion. The petition was launched by the European Parliament, and it has been signed by thousands of women across Europe.

The petition calls for the decriminalization of abortion, and it is supported by many politicians and activists.

Women's Education

The importance of education cannot be overstated. It is essential for the development of the individual and the community as a whole.

Education for Your Daughters?

Are you considering an education for your daughter? If so, it is important to carefully consider your options.

Women in the Workplace

Women's representation in the workplace has increased significantly over the years. However, there is still much work to be done to ensure equal opportunities for all.

Women in Europe

Women's rights are protected by law in many European countries. However, there are still some countries where women's rights are not fully respected.

Women in Latin America

The struggle for women's rights in Latin America is ongoing. However, there are some success stories that give hope for the future.

Women in Asia

The struggle for women's rights in Asia is also ongoing. However, there are some success stories that give hope for the future.

Women in Africa

The struggle for women's rights in Africa is also ongoing. However, there are some success stories that give hope for the future.

Women in the Middle East

The struggle for women's rights in the Middle East is also ongoing. However, there are some success stories that give hope for the future.

Women in South America

The struggle for women's rights in South America is also ongoing. However, there are some success stories that give hope for the future.

Women in Europe

The importance of women's rights cannot be overstated. It is essential for the development of the individual and the community as a whole.

Women's Representation in the Workplace

Women's representation in the workplace has increased significantly over the years. However, there is still much work to be done to ensure equal opportunities for all.

Women's Rights in Latin America

The struggle for women's rights in Latin America is ongoing. However, there are some success stories that give hope for the future.

Women's Rights in Asia

The struggle for women's rights in Asia is also ongoing. However, there are some success stories that give hope for the future.

Women's Rights in Africa

The struggle for women's rights in Africa is also ongoing. However, there are some success stories that give hope for the future.

Women's Rights in the Middle East

The struggle for women's rights in the Middle East is also ongoing. However, there are some success stories that give hope for the future.

Women's Rights in South America

The struggle for women's rights in South America is also ongoing. However, there are some success stories that give hope for the future.
Is Biology Woman's Destiny?

by Evelyn Reed

PART ONE

The second half of this article will be published next issue.

Many women in the liberation movement, especially those involved with the Black Panthers, are already aware of the concept of the biological role of women. However, some others may not be as well informed about this issue. For these women, I would like to present a brief overview of the biological role of women in the liberation movement.

In biology, the concept of sex roles is based on the idea that men and women are different from each other in certain ways. These differences are not biologically determined, but rather are the result of socialization and cultural influences. The sexual role of women is determined by society and not by biology.

The biological role of women is often associated with reproduction. Women are the source of life and are responsible for the continued existence of the species. This is the primary function of women in society, and it is an important role that women have always played.

However, the biological role of women is not limited to reproduction. Women also have a social role that is separate from their biological role. This role involves caring for and raising children, as well as providing emotional support to their partners. This role is often referred to as the "woman's role" because it is a role that is traditionally associated with women.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not something that women were born with. It is a role that is learned and is influenced by societal expectations. Women are expected to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.

The biological role of women is not inherent, but rather is a result of socialization and cultural influences. Women are socialized to fulfill this role, and if they do not, they may be perceived negatively.
Chapter 9: Those Who Died So That the International Might Live

We have already devoted the bulk of our analysis to the role of the Trotskyist movement in the Russian Revolution of 1917. This is not to say that the movement was unimportant in other countries and at other times. Indeed, it was often the case that the movement in one country was the result of the influence of another. This is particularly true of the movement in France.

In the years following the fall of the Provisional Government in 1917, the French workers and peasants were faced with the task of building a new government. The so-called "Third International," which was led by Trotsky and the Comintern, played a key role in this process. The movement in France was particularly strong, and its influence was felt throughout Europe.

The movement in France was led by a small group of dedicated activists, who worked tirelessly to build a mass movement. Among the most important of these was the Trotskyist leader, Leon Trotsky. Trotsky was a towering figure in the French movement, and his influence was felt throughout the world.

The movement in France was also led by a number of other important figures, including Jean Jaurès, Jean Jaurès, Jean Jaurès, and Jean Jaurès. These leaders were able to inspire a mass movement and to build a strong organization.

The movement in France was able to achieve a number of important victories. In particular, it was able to gain significant concessions from the government, including the right to organize and the right to strike.

The movement in France was ultimately successful, and it played a key role in the development of the international socialist movement. The movement in France was a model for other countries, and it inspired movements around the world.

Finally, we would like to pay tribute to the memory of those who died in the service of the movement. These were individuals who gave their lives for the cause of international socialism, and they will always be remembered.

The movement in France was a truly international movement, and it is difficult to say who would not have benefited from its influence. The movement in France was a model for other countries, and it inspired movements around the world.

The movement in France was a truly international movement, and it is difficult to say who would not have benefited from its influence. The movement in France was a model for other countries, and it inspired movements around the world.
The World Revolution

Plans for Niugini Army

By Ray E. Dempster

Workers Struggles in Argentine Elections

By Tony Thomas

French Communist League in Elections

Worldwide Student Struggles

Forum on Palestine

A Good Question

by Michael Svanum

Black Strikers Shake Apartheid Regime

According to the January 19 & New York Times, in a large city near the center of South Africa, the police have been called in to disperse a crowd of black workers who have been refusing to return to work. The workers have barricaded themselves in a factory and are demanding better wages and working conditions. The police have used tear gas and water cannon to try to disperse the workers. The workers have responded by burning several police cars and throwing stones at the police. The situation has escalated into a full-scale riot, with reports of police firing rubber bullets and tear gas canisters at the workers. The workers have remained barricaded in the factory and continue to demand their demands.

The riot in the town of Verwoerd, which is near the center of South Africa, has sparked a wave of violence across the country. The police have been called in to disperse crowds of black workers who have been refusing to return to work. The workers have barricaded themselves in factories and are demanding better wages and working conditions. The police have used tear gas and water cannon to try to disperse the workers. The workers have responded by burning several police cars and throwing stones at the police. The situation has escalated into a full-scale riot, with reports of police firing rubber bullets and tear gas canisters at the workers. The workers have remained barricaded in the factory and continue to demand their demands.

The riot in the town of Verwoerd, which is near the center of South Africa, has sparked a wave of violence across the country. The police have been called in to disperse crowds of black workers who have been refusing to return to work. The workers have barricaded themselves in factories and are demanding better wages and working conditions. The police have used tear gas and water cannon to try to disperse the workers. The workers have responded by burning several police cars and throwing stones at the police. The situation has escalated into a full-scale riot, with reports of police firing rubber bullets and tear gas canisters at the workers. The workers have remained barricaded in the factory and continue to demand their demands.

The riot in the town of Verwoerd, which is near the center of South Africa, has sparked a wave of violence across the country. The police have been called in to disperse crowds of black workers who have been refusing to return to work. The workers have barricaded themselves in factories and are demanding better wages and working conditions. The police have used tear gas and water cannon to try to disperse the workers. The workers have responded by burning several police cars and throwing stones at the police. The situation has escalated into a full-scale riot, with reports of police firing rubber bullets and tear gas canisters at the workers. The workers have remained barricaded in the factory and continue to demand their demands.
IN BRIEF:

AUSTRALIAN LABOUR HISTORY
PART 5

THE SCULLIN GOVERNMENT
1929-32

By Peter Conrick

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL

SCULLIN GOVERNMENT

1929-32

The Scullin Government was the first Labor government in Australia. It came to power in 1929 and lasted until 1932. The government was led by Prime Minister William Scullin and supported by the Labour Party. The Scullin Government was characterized by its efforts to improve working conditions and to protect workers' rights. However, it also faced challenges such as the Great Depression, which led to increased unemployment and economic hardship. The government's efforts to manage these challenges were met with mixed success, but it laid the groundwork for future Labor governments to build upon. The Scullin Government's legacy includes the establishment of the Australian Workers' Union, the introduction of the first industrial relations laws, and the expansion of social welfare programs. Despite its challenges, the Scullin Government remains an important milestone in Australian labor history.
Whitlam's New Asian Policy

BY JIM McROG

Prime Minister Gough Whitlam's recent move to liberalise Australia's "indepen dent" foreign policy for Asia reveals quite clearly the beginnings of that policy's not being changed. These signs are in the immediate and more distant past. In the Asia region politically, economically and socially there is an increasing awareness of the existence of a "world" of Pacific Islander and East Asian peoples against whom the dominant forces of the global capitalist system have been operating. The ancient and traditional forms of political organisation are being challenged by the new political forces emerging in that region. The growing populations of the Asia region are pushing into the Pacific that region, and the Pacific into the region of Asia. The Asia region is becoming of increasing importance in world affairs. The World War II battlefields in the Pacific region are being transformed into the new battlefields of the Cold War. The United States of America is the major player in this new political arena, and its role in the region must be taken into account in any consideration of the future of the region.

The Vietnamese are suffering the consequences of this long war. The people are occupied by the Commissars of the Communist Party. The Vietnamese are being forced to fight for their survival, and the central problem is that of the Vietnamese people. The Vietnamese are being exploited by the Vietnamese government, and the Vietnamese people are being exploited by the United States. The United States is using the Vietnam war as a means of maintaining its control over the region.

Australia has a role to play in this region. Australia can become a factor in the resolution of the conflict in Vietnam. Australia can become a factor in the resolution of the conflict in the Asia region. Australia can become a factor in the resolution of the conflict in the world.