The Downfall of the Dollar

ERNST MANDEL

The July issue of Deutsche Internationale reported on the imminent collapse of the dollar, with the optimistic but optimistic tone that this will be the last issue before the dollar's end. The report suggested that the collapse will be due to a combination of factors, including the collapse of the Bretton Woods system, the rise of the euro, and the ongoing crisis in Europe. The report also noted that the collapse of the dollar will have significant implications for the global economy, including the rise of China as a world power.

The report highlighted the growing economic challenges faced by Europe, with a focus on Germany, which was portrayed as being particularly vulnerable. The report noted that the eurozone crisis had left many European countries with high debt levels and low growth, and that this was putting pressure on the euro.

The report also discussed the role of China in the global economy, with a focus on its growing economy and increasing influence. The report noted that China had been able to maintain strong economic growth despite the global crisis, and that this was putting pressure on other economies.

The report concluded with a warning about the implications of the dollar's collapse, with a focus on the potential for a new currency war and the need for a new economic order. The report suggested that the collapse of the dollar would be a significant event in the history of the world economy.
Vietnam Withdrawal in Perspective

George Fyson

The following article has been reported from Vietnam by Associated Press correspondent in that country.

The August 15 announcement of the withdrawal of the American military forces from Vietnam does not mean that the American military presence in the Far East will be entirely eliminated. The government's decision to withdraw the American forces does not mean that the Vietnam War is over. The war will continue, but in a different form. The government's decision is a response to the growing political pressure in the United States against American involvement in the war.

The National Liberation Front is still powerful. It is still capable of mounting attack if it chooses to do so. The American forces will not be able to prevent the Front from acting. The government's decision will not end the war. The war will continue, but in a different form.

THE SHAME OF WESTERN PORT

KESTER BAINES

Many people are beginning to realize that pollution is not simply a problem that affects the environment, but also has serious impacts on our health and well-being. The government has taken some steps to address this issue, but more needs to be done. Western Port has been identified as one of the most polluted ports in the world, with high levels of industrial pollutants being released into the water, air, and soil. The government has been warned that it must take action to protect the health of the residents and the environment. The problem is not limited to Western Port, as other ports around the world are facing similar challenges. It is time for the government to take action and implement effective measures to protect our environment and health.

NATIONAL ABORTION CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED IN U.S.

WOMEN IN REVOLT

RUTH CHAMON

The National Abortion Campaign launched a nationwide campaign to raise awareness about the issues surrounding abortion and to advocate for the rights of women. The campaign, which has been endorsed by multiple women's rights groups, aims to challenge the stigma and discrimination surrounding abortion and to promote a more compassionate and informed approach to the issue. The campaign is part of a broader international movement to decriminalize abortion and ensure that women have access to safe and legal abortion services. The campaign's goal is to create a more equitable and just society where women's rights are respected and valued.

IRELAND: THE STRUGGLE CONTINUES

The Australian press has generally tended to exploit the situation in Ireland, especially in the wake of recent events, to the end of whipping up false national differences that most of the people there have long since put behind them. It is difficult to exaggerate that.

The issue is one of economic and political forces, and the answer is one of the Irish people themselves. The only solution is to build a world-wide movement to bring about a solution to the Irish situation.

The growth of the Industrial North

The growth of the Industrial North must be seen in the light of the Irish people's long-standing tradition of resistance to British rule. The Industrial North represents the economic base of the Irish people, and the development of the Industrial North is the key to the future of the Irish people.

The Orange Order

The Orange Order is an organization that represents the interests of the Protestant minority in Ireland. It has a long history of resistance to Irish nationalism and has been involved in many conflicts in the past. The Orange Order is currently engaged in a campaign to maintain the status quo in Northern Ireland.

The IRA

The Irish Republican Army (IRA) is a paramilitary organization that seeks to achieve Irish independence through armed struggle. The IRA has been involved in numerous conflicts in the past and is currently engaged in a campaign to overthrow the British government in Ireland.

The Catholic Church

The Catholic Church has a long history of resistance to British rule in Ireland. It has been a key player in the development of Irish nationalism and has been involved in many conflicts in the past. The Catholic Church is currently engaged in a campaign to maintain the status quo in Northern Ireland.

The British Government

The British Government has a long history of attempting to maintain its control over Ireland. It has been involved in numerous conflicts in the past and is currently engaged in a campaign to maintain its control over Northern Ireland.

The Republican Movement

The Republican Movement represents the interests of the Irish people and seeks to achieve Irish independence through political means. It has a long history of resistance to British rule in Ireland and is currently engaged in a campaign to overthrow the British government in Ireland.

The Peace Process

The peace process in Northern Ireland has been ongoing for many years. It has involved many different groups and organizations, and has been marked by both successes and setbacks. The peace process is currently engaged in a campaign to bring about a lasting peace in Northern Ireland.
Brazil regime murders Trotskyist militant

By Horacio Téllez

On street corners in downtown Matias Romero, a new wave of political repression is being felt. The Popular Revolutionary Party (PRP), which was founded in 1985, has been targeted by the police and the military. The PRP is a Trotskyist organization that has been active in the region for several years. The repression has intensified in recent weeks, with numerous arrests and violence against activists.

The PRP is known for its anti-imperialist and anti-neoliberal stance, and it has been involved in protests against government policies and campaigns for workers' rights. The repression has sparked outrage among activists and the general public, who call for the government to end the violence and respect democratic rights.

The PRP has called for a national day of protest to demand the release of its members and an end to the harassment of activists. The government has responded with a crackdown, increasing the militarization of the region and intensifying the repression.

The situation in Matias Romero is a worrying development, and it highlights the ongoing struggle against the ruling elite and its repressive measures.

Bolte in the Provinces

by Horacio Téllez

The Bolivian government has announced plans to increase social spending in the provinces, particularly in the areas of health and education. The move is seen as a response to the growing dissatisfaction with the government's economic policies and the ongoing social protests.

The government has stated that the additional funds will be used to improve public services and reduce the precarity of life for the many Bolivians who are living in poverty. The announcement has been welcomed by activists and civil society organizations who have been calling for more resources to be directed towards social programs.

However, some critics have pointed out that the government's track record on social spending has been mixed, with many programs failing to reach those most in need. They have called for more transparency and accountability in the use of these funds to ensure that they benefit the people they are intended to help.

Overall, the move is seen as a positive step towards addressing the social inequalities that persist in Bolivian society, but it remains to be seen how effective the government's plans will be in practice.
ZIONISM AND ISRAEL

MYTH AND REALITY

One of the themes of Zehut is the contention that Zionism is the sole solution to the problem of Jewish assimilation and that it is the only way to preserve Jewish identity. This is in contrast to the belief held by the Labor Party and many other political groups, which argue that there is no single solution to the problem of Jewish assimilation. In this context, Zehut is seen as a proponent of a more radical approach to the issue of Jewish identity.

The political landscape in Israel is characterised by a struggle between different political groups with distinct visions of what a Jewish state should be. Zehut is one of the many parties vying for the attention of voters, and it is important to understand the different perspectives that are presented by these parties in order to make an informed decision on how to vote in the upcoming election.
Organise for a Socialist Australia

The Socialist Youth Alliance sees the present period in Australia as one of widening and deepening opposition to the capitalist system. This is most strikingly shown by the growth of the anti-war movement. In the middle of the imperialist war in Southeast Asia, a majority of the people challenge the right of the Australian government to wage that war. Huge street demonstrations unprecedented in recent Australian history have been organised around the demand for the immediate withdrawal of Australian and US forces from Southeast Asia.

More and more people recognise that Australia’s involvement in the war in Southeast Asia is to the interests of freedom and democracy abroad but not in the interests of a small profit-hungry minority here at home. Vietnam is not an isolated mistake, but the logical extension of capitalism, a system which places profit above human need.

We live in a system which perpetuates war as aggression like the one in Vietnam while here at home it produces poverty, exploitation, racism, the oppression of women, the poisoning of our environment, and the distortion of all human relationships.

We are now in a period of radicalisation, of growing opposition to all the oppressive aspects of the capitalist system. Tens of thousands of people demand the government get out of Vietnam immediately, a women’s liberation movement has emerged and is putting forth the demand for the right of women to control their own bodies and rejecting the degrading and inferior status to which women are subjected by capitalism’s male-dominated institutions. High school students are rebelling against the repressive conditions in the schools, and many people, especially the youth are rejecting the stifling morality of the bourgeoisie, and the labour movement has shown its willingness to sacrifice for the war and the bosses’ profits by the increased number of strikes in the present period.

We support all movements for social change realising that they must develop in a revolutionary direction if they are to win their demands. We participate in these movements, we attempt to try and build them into organised mass movements that can win their demand.

We believe that it is only through the direct action of masses of people-challenging the right of the ruling class to control their lives-demanding an end to their oppression—saying that there can be a better way, a system based on human needs rather than profit—that the Australian socialist revolution will be made.

The Socialist Youth Alliance is a revolutionary socialist youth organisation dedicated to the elimination of this capitalist society and the creation of a new socialist society based on human needs rather than profit. We are dedicated to the construction of a socialist Australia and a socialist world. We see socialism as the only alternative to the total annihilation of human-kind by the capitalist system—whether through thermonuclear holocaust or the destruction of the environment.

If you agree with us that the capitalist system promotes wars of aggression like that in Southeast Asia, that it means poverty, oppression of women, racism, and the destruction of the environment, then you should also agree with us in the need for an organisation to fight all aspects of capitalism for the only solution is the creation of socialism.

The Socialist Youth Alliance seeks to unite men and women, students and workers in the struggle against capitalism. If you want to end capitalism, if you want a socialist Australia then join us in the most urgent task facing youth in this country—building an organisation which can help lead the Australian socialist revolution.

If you oppose the conflict and conscription, if you want a socialist Australia, if you want the struggle for women’s liberation, the struggle for socialist democracy to Eastern Europe, Latin America and the struggle for national liberation throughout the world—join the SOCIALIST YOUTH ALLIANCE.

Our solution to the money crisis. Get rid of capitalism.

But to do this we need money. So send us your money for the DIRECT ACTION FUND DRIVE. The goal is $1,000 by 1977.

We’re absolutely serious about this. There just isn’t a better way that you can use your money than by putting it to work for a better, better, more frequent Direct Action that is urgently needed to respond to the new radicalisation and to put the socialist alternative to capitalism. We’ve raised $465 towards our minimum goal of $1,000. But there’s a form below which you can fill in and make your contribution. (By the way: that $50 sign is not just for show.) You might as well give us your spare money, we can use it immediately.
