UNEMPLOYMENT AND THE ALP

The number of people unemployed in Australia is currently at a record high. The figures show that the unemployment rate is at its highest level since the early 1980s. The ALP's policies have failed to address this crisis.

For a sliding scale of wages & a sliding scale of hours

Under the conditions of disintegrating capitalism, the wage and hour system is archaic and exploitative. The sliding scale of wages and hours is a way to address this crisis. The sliding scale of wages and hours was designed to provide workers with a living wage and a decent working environment.

GAYS GET ACTIVE AT NSW UNI

BY FRANK TIDYMAN

The University of Sydney has recently been established by the NSW Government as one of the largest and most powerful of the nation's universities. A name change is due within the next year or so, the University of Sydney, however, is not to be taken lightly. It is a noted institution with a long history of excellence and a strong reputation for excellence in teaching and research. The University is currently seeking to expand its facilities and is now in the process of planning a new campus in the heart of Sydney's CBD. The University is also working closely with the local community to ensure that the new campus is a safe and welcoming environment for all students.

The University of Sydney has a long history of promoting gay and lesbian rights, and has been at the forefront of this issue in Australia. The University is home to a number of gay and lesbian groups, including the Sydney University Gay & Lesbian Society (SUGALS) and the Sydney University Women's Rugby League (SULWRL). The University is also home to a number of other organisations that promote gay and lesbian rights, including the Sydney University Legal Research Centre (SULRC), the Sydney University Human Rights Law Centre (SULHRC), and the Sydney University Women's Legal Research Centre (SULWRL). STUDENT STRIKE A HUGE SUCCESS

By Greg Adamson

On September 20, 1969, thousands of students across Canada staged a massive protest against American involvement in the Vietnam War. The student strike was a significant moment in Canadian history, marking the first major student protest against the Vietnam War and setting a precedent for future activism.

The strike was organized by the Canadian Union of Students (CUS), a national student organization that represented students from various faculties and campuses across the country. The CUS had been formed in 1968 to address issues such as tuition fees, academic freedom, and the role of the state in education.

The strike began when students at the University of British Columbia (UBC) in Vancouver decided to protest against the war. Other universities quickly followed suit, including the University of Toronto, York University, and the University of Alberta. The protests were supported by unions, teachers, and community groups.

The strike was a massive success, with hundreds of thousands of students participating across Canada. It brought attention to the issue of the war and helped to shape public opinion. The strike lasted for several months and included a series of strikes, sit-ins, and demonstrations.

In the end, the strike had a lasting impact on Canadian politics and culture. It helped to establish the role of students in social and political activism, and it contributed to the growth of a new generation of activists who would go on to fight for social justice and equality.

A.C.T.

There were, however, other protests happening in the United States as well. In Chicago, students went on strike in support of civil rights and against the war. The strike was sparked by the killing of four black students at the University of Chicago, leading to a larger protest against the war and the police.

In the end, the student strike in Canada was a major success, helping to bring attention to the issue of the war and helping to change public opinion. The strike also helped to establish the role of students in social and political activism, and it contributed to the growth of a new generation of activists who would go on to fight for social justice and equality.

US TEACHERS CONVENTION VOTES AGAINST VIETNAM WAR

By J.D. MacGregor

The American Federation of Teachers (AFT) voted to support the student strike and to call for a new convention against the war. The AFT was a national union that represented teachers across the country.

The vote was a significant moment in the growing anti-war movement. It showed that teachers were also concerned about the war and were willing to take action to address the issue.

The vote also helped to establish the role of teachers in social and political activism. It helped to bring attention to the issue of the war and helped to change public opinion. It also helped to establish the role of teachers in social and political activism, and it contributed to the growth of a new generation of activists who would go on to fight for social justice and equality.
WHICH WAY FOR YUGOSLAVIA?

by C. VERLA

The Yugoslav army in the face of the Allied forces in the Balkan area has been forced to evacuate the region. The fighting in Yugoslavia continues, with both sides claiming victory. The situation is unstable and the future of Yugoslavia is uncertain.

The Yugoslav military has been under pressure from the Allies to withdraw from the region. This has caused a significant shift in the balance of power in the region. The Allies have been able to gain control of much of the territory, while the Yugoslav forces have been pushed back. The fighting has been intense, with both sides suffering heavy losses.

The situation in Yugoslavia is complex and unpredictable. The future is uncertain, and it is impossible to predict what will happen next. The only thing that is clear is that the fighting will continue, and that the situation will remain unstable until a peaceful solution is found.

The prison revolt

By David Deutschmann

The story of a revolt begins with the decision to rise up. That is the story of the Ceylonese rebels who have been fighting against the British colonial rule. The rebels, led by the National Front for Republican Rights, have been carrying on a prolonged struggle for independence. The recent events in the island have shown that the rebellion is gaining momentum.

The National Front for Republican Rights was founded in 1956, and it has been fighting for the restoration of Ceylonese independence ever since. The group has been supported by many ordinary people, who are tired of living under British rule. The British colonial administration has been trying to suppress the rebellion, but it has not been able to stop the revolution.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

ALIENATED STUDENT

An important person is the student at a state university who wrote an article in the school paper last week about the problem of alienation experienced by students. He pointed out that many students feel that they are not part of the university community and are not able to participate fully in the decision-making processes that affect their lives. He suggested that the university should create more opportunities for students to be involved in the administration and governance of the institution in order to alleviate this sense of alienation.

IRELAND AGAIN

Elaine

Could you consider the possibility of publishing an article on the Irish situation in the magazine?

DA REPLIES AGAIN

Dear Elaine,

Thank you for your letter. I appreciate your concern about the lack of coverage of the situation in Ireland. The reason for this is that the situation in Ireland is complex and constantly changing. There are many different viewpoints and perspectives on the issue, and it is difficult to present a fair and balanced perspective in a single article. However, we are always striving to improve our coverage of the area and will continue to make efforts to provide more comprehensive coverage in the future.

You will find my letter on the previous page.

GEORGE CRAWFORD REPORTS BACK

On September 15th, George Crawford, the new editor of the local newspaper, announced that he will be taking the position of editor on September 16th. He will be replacing the retiring editor, who has been with the newspaper for the past 20 years. Crawford has been with the newspaper for 15 years and has worked on various positions, including reporter and managing editor. He is looking forward to his new role and hopes to bring new ideas and perspectives to the newspaper.

STANDING IN POVERTY OR LACK MONITOR

The Standing Committee on Poverty or Lack, which was established last year, has released its latest report. The report highlights the increasing number of people living in poverty or lack and the challenges faced by those who are struggling to make ends meet. The committee calls for increased government funding for social programs and a renewed focus on reducing poverty and improving the lives of those in need.

ADECIDE EMOTIONS PROJECT

On September 15th, 10 people who have been affected by the ADECIDE EMOTIONS PROJECT were interviewed about their experiences. The project, which is aimed at helping people manage their emotions, has been receiving positive feedback. The participants shared stories of how the project has helped them to cope with stress and handle difficult situations.
