We cannot support a war against children!

“...What we are doing to Vietnam may become clearer if the same percentages are applied to the American population.

They mean that one out of every two American families with four children would be struck with the tragedy of having at least one child killed or maimed.

There is a good chance, too, that the father would be dead as well. At the very least, he is probably far from home.”

Apply these comments and statistics to Australia, for we are equally guilty. Australian men, 'planes, ships and bombs are in Vietnam backing the U.S. aggression responsible for this outrageous sacrifice of young lives.

This destruction of children is not one of those sad but inescapable accidents of war. It is a direct and necessary result of the Johnson Administration’s policy of unrestricted bombing of the Vietnamese countryside.

There are certain issues beyond political considerations. The killing of children is one of them.

“Torn flesh, splintered bones, screaming agony are bad enough. But perhaps most heart-rending of all are the tiny faces and bodies scorched and seared by fire.”

“. . .I never left the tiny victims without losing composure. The initial urge to reach out and soothe the hurt was restrained by the fear that the ash-like skin would crumble in my fingers.”
Opposite we publish some of the reasons why Australian seamen, members of the Seamen's Union of Australia, refused to volunteer to carry bombs and munitions to the war in Vietnam.

Denied space in the news columns of the daily press, seamen made their views public by inserting paid advertisements in daily newspapers. The “Sydney Morning Herald” and the “Daily Telegraph” refused to accept the advertisement, reproduced on these pages.

Freedom of the press?

William Flint, Able Seaman, ex Jeparit

“One trip to Vietnam was enough for me. In Vung Tau I saw American MPs hand call and exhandler a six-year-old kid into a jeep, he was obviously terrified. The harried site we took there is used to make villages into concentration camps. The suggestion that Australian soldiers were hostile to us is ridiculous. The crew had many friends among the soldiers. Last trip we took fresh meat and beer and had a barbecue with them on the beach. No Australian should support the war against women and children that is going on up there.”

Basil Box, Able Seaman, ex Boonaroo

“I have been at sea for fifty years since I first went to sea in England during the 14-18 War. I went right through the 39-45 War in Australian troop ships. I've been through bombings and my ship's been sunk. I did this in a war against Fascism but I won't be conscripted into this filthy business to blow up women and children. If the Government wants the likes of me to operate in taking ships to Vietnam they would need to make the orogies to materials to build up the country to destroy it. They'd have no trouble getting us to man ships.”

John Graham, Able Seaman, ex Boonaroo

“I'm twenty-five years old, have a wife, two kids and I'm a Catholic. One trip on the Boonaroo was enough for me. What I saw up there disgusted me. I'm proud of the decision of our stopwar meetings. Now I can sleep at night with a clear conscience, knowing that neither myself, my shipmates, nor my fellow Unionsmen have taken any part in increasing the sickening number of children already married and killed by bombing in Vietnam. The London Daily didn't make the British surrender and I don't believe that bombing will make the Vietnamese.”

Raymond King, Greaser

“I attended our last stopwar meeting and I'm glad of the decision. I'll have no part in taking a cargo of bombs to blow up the Vietmanese people, especially when I know that only one side in this business and they are killing too many women and children. I was in Vietnam when that was getting rid of the French... It's Jim and the Government is now trying to sneak us into helping the Yanks take over the country. I'll willingly sail on any ship to bring our boys home.”

Are these men wrong?

SEAMEN HAVE VOTED AGAINST PARTICIPATION IN THE VIETNAM WAR IN THE INTERESTS OF AUSTRALIA

EXTRACT OF RESOLUTION OF A SEAMEN'S MEETING, MARCH 8, 1967

We civilian seamen are being called upon to participate in a war that has horrified the world, has no support from the United Nations, and is bringing death and destruction to thousands of innocent people by the use of such bombs as are to be carried on the Boonaroo.

We cannot support such a war.

Stop the bombing! Negotiate!

Raymond Greenhough, Able Seaman

“I was in Vietnam in 1950 when the Vietnamese were being robbed and butchered by ex Nazis in the French Foreign Legion. They've now been replaced by the American Army. I don't want my country, my union, or my mates involved in maintaining the vicious domination of the Vietnamese people by Hitler-admirers wearing ties. What's the point in blaming the German people for the acts of Nazis when we Australians co-operate in the oppression of Vietnam?”

Warrick Maude, Able Seaman, ex Jeparit

“I did my National Service training in 1960 and I'm dead against conscription. What affected me most in Vietnam was the way the war is making our soldiers brutal... They kill or are killed... Prisoners being killed to death. I was at school with some of the Vietnamese over six years old should be shot between the knees. It's terrible to hear some of our soldiers talking of killing more and shooting all the Vietnamese. Our soldiers up there would like to see the bombing stopped and peace negotiated.”
“A lovely 28-year-old peasant woman was lying on her back nursing a young child. The evening before she had been sitting in her thatched hut when a piece of shrapnel tore through her back transecting the spinal cord. She was completely paralysed below the nipple line. We could do nothing more for her than give antibiotics and find a place to lie. A few mornings later she was dead.”
