FORMING THE STRUCTURE.

A new and a highly constructive one to Revolutionary Industrial Organizing in the United States has been of late years the activity of the National Committee for Prima. Its members, having been engaged in the organizing of trade unions and其它 the American Federation, have taken upon themselves the task of developing a more effective method of organization. They have been working for many months on the scheme of an industrial union, and have now reached a point where they can announce the formation of the National Committee for Prima. This committee will consist of representatives from all parts of the country, and its object is to coordinate the efforts of all the existing trade unions in order to secure a more efficient and comprehensive organization of the workers.

The work of preparation and organization is now in progress, and it is hoped that within a few weeks the National Committee for Prima will be ready to take up its duties.

The next step will be the formation of a national committee for the purpose of co-coordinating the work of the various local committees. This committee will be composed of representatives from all parts of the country, and its object is to give a more effective and comprehensive organization to the work of the local committees.

The National Committee for Prima is now in close touch with the trade unions, and is working to secure a more effective and comprehensive organization of the workers. It is hoped that within a few weeks the committee will be ready to take up its duties and to begin the work of organization.

The work of the National Committee for Prima is of great importance, and it is hoped that it will be able to secure a more effective and comprehensive organization of the workers, and thus to make a greater contribution to the cause of the working class.

The "Sydney Morning Herald" comments on the movement of the sugar shareholders from the share magnates and public companies.

"It does not matter who your comrade in arms may be, who may be fighting in the trenches against the enemy, those in the factories who are doing the same work are entitled to the same rights as the soldier. The Herald" however, stops short of this extent of the argument.

The "Herald" is put in a position capitalistic. "We gave you the opportunity to return to your homes. We enabled you to accumulate wealth, but you have abused the trust. Now you must return to your homes. We gave you the capital elsewhere, and there you must work to build up your capital elsewhere."

"The "Herald"'s" treatment of the question is well put. It is the same thing as confiscation of property, even if it is a different thing. The actions of the "Herald" of justice and fair play. Besides, this is a matter of principle, not a matter of self-interest. The government and government departments might have a different principle, but the government, which has power, might have a different principle, but the government, which has power, might have a different principle, but the government, which has power, might be in a different position."

In the case of the soldier, the government must support the actions of the "Herald". In the case of the soldier, the government must support the actions of the "Herald". Female And Child Labor in India.

BY B. R. N. W.

In January 26th of this year, some of the workers in the cotton mills of Bombay and Poona were arrested for the strike. The strike was called by the Nationalist Congress of India, and was supported by a large number of workers. The strike was called upon the conditions of work in the cotton mills, which were very bad, and the workers were demanding better wages and shorter hours.

Workers v. Shirkers.

In the Bombay region, the workers in the cotton mills have been striking for better wages and shorter hours. The workers have been demanding that the employers should not shirk their duties and that they should work diligently. The employers have been opposing the workers, and a lot of trouble has been caused.
